

On to the middle: 2020

● auf--zur--mitte-blogspot-com.translate.goog/2020

The original toroidal Yin-Yang symbol is the "sign of truth"!

"Signs and symbols rule the world, not words or laws." - Confucius

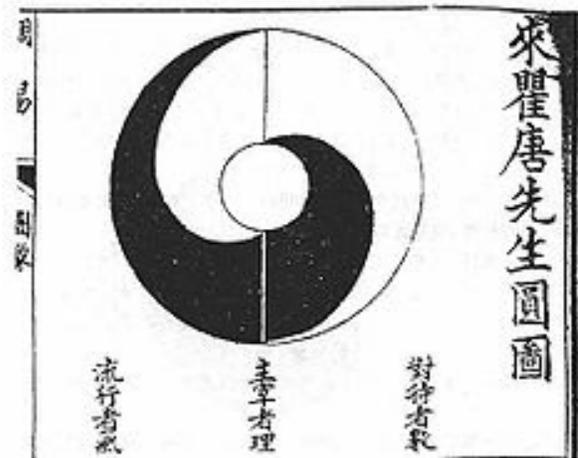

Symbols are very important because, as we know, a picture says more than a thousand words by expressing a principle. The use of certain symbols and gestures also corresponds to the spirit of the times and shapes it subconsciously (think of the peace symbols and peace gestures).

On the left is the toroidal-centered-asymmetric Taijitu representation of the sexual yin-yang complementarity.

On the right is the reduced, symmetrical-relativistic polarity symbol from the Ming Dynasty .

The original Yin-Yang was called Taiji . The character 太 ( tài ) means "very", "highest", "extreme", "the greatest", the maximum, i.e. the circumference (the earth). The character 極 ( jí ), on the other hand, stands for the peak of a mountain, the ridge of a gable roof, from which the meaning of the main point, the pole, the middle, the center , the axis (around which the sky rotates) is derived.

Taijitu by Lai Shi - the original Yin-Yang symbol

---

Gender and Polarity

---

The newer yin-yang symbol from the Ming era (right) is internationally known and is even an integral part of the international UTF character code with the number U+262F (☯). It is the first thing that comes to mind when many people are asked about a symbol for the polarity and interrelationship of male (yang) and female (yin). But almost no one knows that the most common form today is not that old and only replaced the original so-called "Taijitu" symbol (left), which consists of two concentric circles, in the Ming Dynasty (1368-1644).

The two symbols are similar in terms of the intertwined black and white waves, which represent a polar opposite and a rhythmic, circulating change (of day and night). However, the sexual complementarity is missing! It can still be found in its purest form in one of the oldest and highest symbols of creation in Hinduism, the Shiva Lingam. Viewed from above, the Lingam (phallus) is enclosed by the Yoni (vulva) and coincides with the toroidal Taiji symbol.

---

Sexual complementarity in the Shiva Lingam, the central symbol of creation in Hinduism.

---

Shiva-Shakti (Yang-Yin) in cosmic union

loss of the center

---

The sexual complementarity of masculinity (lingam, penis, axis, center) and femininity (yoni, vagina, wheel, circle) is missing in a non-complementary, non-centered, largely symmetrical symbol such as the Ming-Yin-Yang . Because the upper drop is light (male-radiant), the lower one does not automatically have to be dark (female-receptive). The two phases do not differ on a fundamental level, the positions are interchangeable. And it is precisely this relativity of "hierarchical equality" that leads to the dissolution of natural-biological opposites. It thus literally creates diabolical confusion ( dia-ballein , Greek: to throw together), not least in the self-image of man and woman, or their mutual relationship.

Taiji and Torus

---

The centered symbol contains rotation, as well as - due to the center - contraction and expansion at the same time. It can also be called a toroidal yin-yang if you look at the torus from above. The torus shows the spiral pole funnels that meet at the center of the torus sphere.

---

Torus with complete complementarity:
three-dimensional sphere around a dimensionless center

---

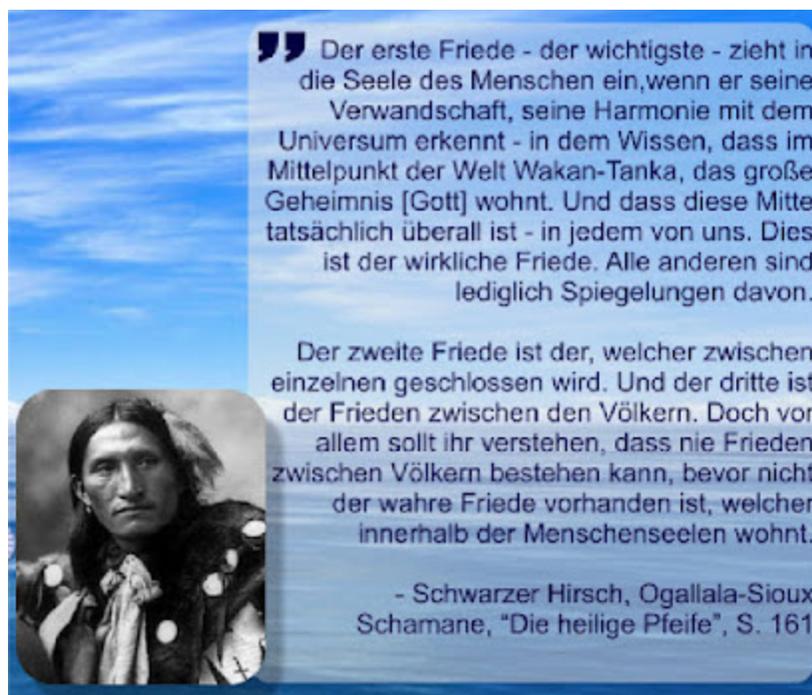

Toroidal fractal Yin-Yang, derived from the Taijitu

Equalization creates chaos and disharmony

---

The Chinese Ming Dynasty, in which the true Taiji was replaced by the false Taiji, also suffered from decadence and was ruled by black magic, like every empire in its destructive final phase, e.g. Atlantis, the Aztec Empire, Babylon, Rome, or its current successor, the Anglo-American Empire with its negative identity as "world policeman" and its necrophilic "American way of life".

The fact that the feminist equalization of men and women is a mistake can be explained by the gender-complementary, asymmetrical principle of Shiva-Shakti (related to the structuring center - emptiness - and the periphery - fullness). However, complementarity does not mean that women should not also have equal rights (such as those that were first legally guaranteed in early Islam, which was absolutely revolutionary for its time). Today, a typically female right would be the free choice between a professional career and recognized, state-protected and promoted motherhood. Only in this way can the millions of abortions of unborn life be prevented (which, by the way, goes back to Karl Marx) and true peace achieved. The loss of the center means confusion and discord.

It is astonishing that the shamans of the "uncivilized peoples" were able to grasp the cosmic truth so precisely, especially Black Elk, the shaman of the Ogallala Sioux. The North American "great secret" (Wakan-Tanka) at the center of the world corresponds exactly to the Far Eastern Taiji philosophy. Both cultures are related in this respect.

The Taiji symbol as an image of the cosmos

We supposedly live in an acentric universe. Irrationality has taken over. But this idea, which corresponds to the loss of the center, is wrong. The toroidal Taiji symbol also describes the toroidal structure of the cellular cosmos : it contains a day half and a night half, a center (celestial body), the periphery (surrounding earth shell) and the ether vortex, which also causes the celestial body to rotate. The day side is determined by the yellow sun cardioid, while the night side is more like a flat crescent moon. The cardioid is created by light rays curved along an ether gradient that emanate from the small yellow sun (at three o'clock, to the right of the celestial body), extend out to the limiting earth shell (at six or twelve o'clock), on the inside of which we are actually located, and curve back to the center over the night side of the earth shell (at nine o'clock) without hitting it.

The outer shell of the cellular cosmos is static, but the celestial body in the middle rotates.

Here is a well-made animation of the Toroidal Universe (although with subtitles that are not always correct in terms of cellular cosmology):

Watch Video At: <https://youtu.be/tbruPR3o0Zc>

The Taiji Symbol and the "Sign of Truth"

---

A sign of the awakening zeitgeist and a synchronicity on the sidelines: Since the end of 2019, the Taiji sign has also been spreading in Germany as a sun sign, or as a "sign of truth" under which the slogan "recognize - awaken - change" usually stands. The sign finds its secular approval as a symbol of peaceful protest and for exposing government fraud at all levels. Brand owner, author and YouTube influencer Heiko Schrang is the frontman of the sign, which has even adorned a bridge with the slogan since August 2020.

It remains to be hoped that the present article will point the bearers of the "sign of truth" to the higher cosmic symbolism: the sexual complementarity, the true yin-yang symbol, the Shiva-Shakti, the highest cosmic principle, but also the triune cellular cosmos.

Further synchronicity: A corresponding simple crop circle was created in June 2020 in Orchow, Poland, although this one is intersected by a second circle of the same size. Is it all a coincidence?

Poland
June's end
2020

A photograph of a crop circle in a field. It features a large outer circle and a smaller inner circle, both with a central dot. The crop is flattened in the center and along the inner circle's path.

Binary system

A diagram illustrating a binary star system. It shows two stars, labeled "NEMESIS" and "SOL", orbiting a common center of mass, labeled "CENTRO DE MASSA". The orbits are represented by overlapping circles. The diagram is signed "JP" in the bottom right corner.

JP

On the Absurdity of German Linguistic Genderism

---

"If a term or a whole language contains supposedly discriminatory prejudices, then it is of no use to exchange or distort the terms! "Migrant" is just as prejudiced as "foreigner". Discrimination does not lie in the term itself, that is a fatal error in thinking!"

- Dr. Tomas Kubelik, Austrian high school teacher for mathematics and German

Just like the diesel driving ban, linguistic genderism is also a German solo effort ! In the global language English, which every German must have a basic grasp of and which has become the de facto benchmark for linguistic feeling and understanding, the gender problem will never arise because there are no female endings for female terms! "The sun" is masculine, "the moon" is feminine in English. The gender only becomes clear from the wider context, namely when the accusative "she" or "he" is used. "The teacher" will therefore always remain clearly masculine, and no English feminist in the world would come up with the absurd idea of worrying about it, or even feeling restricted or discriminated against. It is precisely the genderist sexualization of language that leads to this Orwellian linguistic paternalism ("Newspeak")!

Watch Video At: <https://youtu.be/RI-kVYDTEAk>

Dr. Tomas Kubelik's lecture on the ideology of linguistic genderism

Excerpts from the lecture by Dr. Tomas Kubelik:

Genderism is decades old and never had a chance to prevail. All studies and surveys say that 80-90% of the population reject genderism! In a democracy, that should be enough! Now it is to be pushed through by the state (authorities). Science should research laws and not evaluate them. The demands of linguistic feminists are a scientifically untenable ideology, which was already evident in the first publications. Luise Pusch (co-founder): "Men need a diet to lose weight. She demanded total feminization. The masculine is a diminished or stunted form." Pusch is considered the grande dame of feminist linguistics.

Push explains:

1. Women are massively disadvantaged.
2. The language is to blame.
3. The language must be reformed to eliminate discrimination.

The problem is point 2: language is innocent! If a term contains prejudices, then there is no point in exchanging the terms! "Migrant instead of foreigner".

The "new man" is the subject of ideology. George Orwell's Newspeak (1984) describes it in detail!

It is a fundamental attack on the set of rules that convey meaning, grammar. In particular, the generic masculine. Women are included, but less visible.

But here it becomes completely contradictory and grotesque!

Sentences like "women are better drivers" make absolutely no sense! Genderism refutes itself!

There is nothing feminine about the sausage/the hand and nothing masculine about the cheese/the foot!

There is the human and the guest. But what about the guard, the hostage, the member, the victim? The genders are determined by the word formation!

Dr. Kubelik "Enough gender!"

Words with "-ling" (refugee) are masculine. But assistant and teacher are feminine, but also refer to men.

Four centuries of language change have not led to any adaptation!

The ship, but the Titanic! We don't know where the genders come from.

Teacher and student are job titles or job functions. Endings in "-er" are always masculine, regardless of whether a person is meant or not.

In these forms, women are not only "included" or "subordinate" or "discriminated against"! Men and women are included! To speak of "included" is pointless, misleading and ideological!

The teacher is clear. The teacher can be male or female.

If you want to know how many male teachers a school has, you ask for "male teachers".

The police: your friend and helper?

The child is a liar. The child is a liar is misleading!!

We thank all sponsors." To speak of sponsors would be misleading!

"The voters have spoken" does not refer to men, but to the whole.

The masculine form is neutral!

"I need three students to help me quickly." cannot be gendered!

All forms of gender are useless, contradictory, unaesthetic, uneconomical and misleading!

What does "TeacherIn" mean? What article does it have? The or the teacher? Can you use the genitive? Des LehrerIns?

We see: the whole thing does not fit into our grammar system!

As early as 1987, an interministerial working group of the German federal government determined that the "internal I" is unsuitable for regulatory language.

As soon as genderism becomes compulsory, language becomes impoverished.

The city of Vienna has

A burning "immigrant issue" becomes a mere "migration issue". The teaching team is not the same as the "teaching team".

Such things are patronizing. User-oriented is not the same as practical. "Customer-friendly" is not automatically "accommodating"

If you remove all personal terms.

Genderism is sexist because it constantly puts the emphasis on biological sex, even though it is irrelevant. Language is sexualized, and generic terms can no longer be used. And a myriad of mistakes arise: "Female composers." Or "only 20% of all managers are women."

Sloppiness increases, linguistic awareness atrophies - the main thing is to follow an idea.

The slip of the tongue children and children shows how tense the language awareness is.

The wisest gives in, the customer is king - all of that would disappear.

Language is a highly democratic asset. All 100 million German speakers decide how to speak. Language change does not take place on the drawing board of feminist linguistics.

There are many prominent emancipated women. The young German journalist Dagmar Rosenfeld wrote in an outcry in the newspaper Die Zeit in 2014 :

"I am a woman and I feel bothered by the "in" endings, the "internal I" and all the syntactical equality fiddling. ...

A working group at Berlin's Humboldt University is calling for a feminization of the language and wants to replace all word endings in "-er" with the "a" form.

Elke Ferner (SPD) from the Federal Ministry for Family Affairs returns her State Secretary ID card because the "-in" is missing from the title.

I find it intrusive how our vocabulary is abused in the name of women, including mine, to satisfy the agitation for equality. When the capital I entered our language in the 1980s, it was a promise: the verbal vision of a society in which equality did not end with the right to vote. Until 1977, a woman still needed her husband's permission to take up work. And only a few years before that, a married woman had even been granted full legal capacity. The right to keep one's own surname after marriage was also new. At that time, the capital I acted like an exclamation mark behind a legitimate female urge for change.

T oday, women are the Chancellor, have supreme command over the Bundeswehr and evade taxes just like men. There is the women's quota , the paternity months and Manuela Schwesig. The capital "I" and the "-in" endings have become superfluous.

If the donkey is doing too well, he goes ice dancing. Or he gives back his ID card. The almost extremist features of the obsession with the feminization of language probably have something to do with the tradition of Alice Schwarzer victim feminism. Apparently, some people have not yet mentally found their way out of the female victim role. As therapy and as proof of female self-confidence, I therefore demand the return of the generic masculine. I am also serious about this and at this point I say goodbye to you in a masculine gesture, dear readers, dear citizens, dear state secretaries, dear feminists, dear critics! That feels good."

In July 2020, the Federal Court of Justice and the Federal Constitutional Court rejected a lawsuit filed by a feminist activist seeking to force savings banks to use female or neutral pronouns in their forms. Now she wants to take the case to the European Court of Human Rights in Strasbourg: Marlies Krämer , an 82-year-old feminist activist and author, sued her savings bank in Saarland because it only uses the generic masculine in its forms. So far, however, she has failed at all levels.

This undesirable development, promoted by the state using tax money, is proof of the ideologization and infiltration of the state by a vanishing minority, which is incompatible with its constitutional mandate to protect and increase the common good. The "German do-gooder" should ask himself without prejudice whether this obvious sabotage agenda is limited to the German language, or whether it is perhaps just the tip of the iceberg of a widespread ideologization and indoctrination by the various art movements - referred to in modern parlance as "social engineering" ? The notorious Tavistock Institute (an English think tank founded after the Second World War) sends its regards!

Referendum instead of people's party! Non-partisan solidarity now!

---

The "participation party" ( Widerstand2020.de ) has already managed to gain over 100,000 members within a few days during the acute "Corona democracy crisis" and has the potential to become a "people's party"! If it continues to grow at such a rapid pace, it could reach several hundred thousand, but unfortunately even these are far from enough to send an effective signal against the "democracy" or even to bring it to its knees!

Concrete measures and organizational ideas are very important and urgent when the house is burning brightly, but is a new "people's party" the right strategy to give the people a voice in the necessary haste?

Why a new party is a dead end

---

In this system, "membership numbers" are absolutely irrelevant! Unfortunately, it is not about the votes of all those who think along, but of all those eligible to vote (Schiller in Demetrius: "One should weigh the votes and not count them; The state must perish, sooner or later, Where the majority wins and ignorance decides.") In Germany, three million votes are needed to crack the 5% hurdle

. And even then, a small party is still far from being a coalition partner that can have a say. A party must have developed a minimum program (which is not yet available) and then convince on most points, it must profile itself and position itself, and therefore also differentiate itself from the (massively present, media-pushed) AfD. But that is exactly what dilutes the spontaneous support that the founders received precisely because of their focus on a concrete, burning issue!

The first ZDF report on WIR2020 is already available , coinciding with a strong DDoS attack on the website .

If you then consider that (on a large scale) votes correlate with broadcast minutes, and that the media giants can use this alone to fine-tune the election results as much as a sound engineer can fine-tune his mixing desk, then it becomes clear that we have never lived in a state of pluralism - because the media (the "fourth estate") have never had a duty of impartiality , even if many still "imagine" this.

Why the nationwide referendum is now the greatest opportunity

---

The main aim of Widerstand2020 is to get the actual democratic (people-driven) process going again (or for the first time). And this was already enshrined in Article 20 of the Basic Law : "The people exercise their power in elections and votes !" Voting on compulsory vaccination and compulsory mask wearing could be done in a nationwide REFERENDUM without founding a party with all the overhead! That would be much quicker and more effective, and the majority would be very easy to get.

The only reason why nationwide referendums have been prevented to date is a very trivial one: there is no legal specification of the procedure! What would be important in such a process, as I said, would be the involvement of the public media, their obligation to provide both sides (people's initiative and state) with the same number of minutes of broadcasting for neutral discussion within a cool-down phase of, for example, 60 days, after which the factual arguments of both sides have been heard equally and outweigh spontaneous emotions. For a nationwide referendum, 100,000 votes from eligible voters should be enough.

The association Mehr Demokratie eV has been working on a concrete plan for decades, and some members of the Bundestag, ministers and even parties such as the AfD have expressed their support for a referendum.

Watch Video At: <https://youtu.be/p2ID4gbBylg>

AfD for concretization of the nationwide referendum

The topic has come up again and again in the Bundestag . But the momentum of the masses that is currently present was simply missing. The makers of Widerstand2020 should join forces with alternative media, the medical profession, but also constitutional lawyers to finally push through the referendum in accordance with Article 20 of the Basic Law in a non-partisan and solidarity-based manner (to bring about its legal concretization)! It would be important to join forces with "Democratic Resistance" by Anselm Lenz, who publishes the largest weekly newspaper in the Federal Republic with a circulation of over 380,000 (it is distributed free of charge and financed through donations from 250 doctors and lawyers) and is committed to compliance with the Basic Law.

Watch Video At: <https://youtu.be/aHgkYAjc5Cw>

The first steps have already been taken:

In an interview with the right-wing blog PI News, AfD Bundestag member Hansjörg Müller said he could imagine an extra-parliamentary collaboration with Widerstand 2020. "The AfD is trying to make itself an advocate of the protests," believes sociologist Quent. "It remains to be seen whether Widerstand 2020 will become competition for the AfD," he says.

ZDF report from May 4, 2020

The SPD says in its election manifesto on page 79:

"To support parliamentary democracy, we want to strengthen direct democratic participation at the federal level."

Green Party election manifesto, page 148:

"We want to expand the right to petition into an effective means of citizen participation. For us, however, strengthening democracy does not stop with parliaments, but also includes the democratization of various areas of life, such as schools, universities, training or the workplace. Democracy also thrives on trust in voters, which is why we GREENS want to strengthen elements of direct democracy in federal politics as well. We want to introduce popular initiatives, referendums and popular votes into the constitution."

AfD election manifesto, page 8:

"1.4 Referendums based on the Swiss model

We want to give the people the right to keep an eye on their MPs and to change or reject laws passed by parliament. This would quickly and sustainably stem the flood of often nonsensical bills and force parliaments to work more carefully. This would ensure a moderating influence on decisions made by MPs on their own behalf - such as salaries, parliamentary group and party financing and the financing of "party-affiliated" foundations. The people should also be given the opportunity to introduce their own legislative initiatives and to decide on them by referendum.

The AfD is calling for referendums based on the Swiss model for Germany as well."

The Left Party's election manifesto, page 111:

"We want to introduce popular initiatives, referendums and popular votes at the federal level. The expansion of co-determination rights also includes the introduction of referendums, i.e. citizens can veto parliamentary decisions."

However, a "referendum based on the Swiss model", as demanded by the AfD, is not sufficient if the media are not held accountable as impartial platforms. The specification of Article 20 of the Basic Law must take this into account.

In their petition for a nationwide referendum, the founders of Mehr Demokratie eV have proposed seven top issues for voting, parallel to the 2021 federal election. Please add your own vote to the more than 50,000 signatures! Please forward!

Corona virus pandemic, 5G technology and the NWO

---

---

The Spanish flu of 1918/19 claimed 20-70 million lives worldwide. The coronavirus is said to have the same RNA. In addition, it is not mentioned that countless soldiers fell victim to "vaccination orgies".

The world is facing huge upheavals at the beginning of 2020. Even if the beginning of the pandemic should not be taken lightly, what is now unfolding in a military manner has been planned for many years. Many warnings about exactly this scenario were already being spread in 2018. In a 2010 Simpsons episode, a "virus pandemic as an escalation of 9/11" was even announced.

Watch Video At: <https://youtu.be/eXZpAaRhAQs>

Did a 2010 Simpsons episode predict the Corona Virus?

"I hereby open the great secret meeting of America's media empires. We are here to invent the next moronic, fake crisis that will force Americans back into their dark rooms, glued to a television, too afraid to skip the commercials."

- "I'm for good old health scare."

- "A new disease - no one is immune! It's like 9/11 but instead of terrorists, it's an epidemic, and instead of 9/11, it's always!"

- "We have our principles. We can't just invent a disease. If we want to have moral integrity, we must infect humanity with a deadly virus."

- Simpsons episode from 2010

The video was edited from parts of two episodes. Beginning: "The Miracle of Burns" Season 22, Episode 6 (2010) . Second part (from helicopter?): "March is Arrested", Season 4, Episode 21 (1993).

But here is the crowning glory, which undoubtedly proves prior knowledge and thus a staging:

"Coronavirus" already announced in Asterix comic in 2017!

Previous "crystal ball hits" of the Simpsons

- Ebola book from 2014: 17 years earlier, Marge shows her sick son Bart a book that reports on the terrible consequences of an Ebola outbreak.
- The tiger attack on Sigfried and Roy (2003): In the 1993 episode, they were brutally attacked by their white tiger during a performance in a casino in Las Vegas. [ Here one has to ask oneself how a tiger could have been controlled "by conspiracy theory"? The event would be too improbable to be a mere guess - especially ten years in advance. Very mysterious - and really only explainable by the involvement of spiritual, precognitive beings, DM ].
- The prediction that Germany would become football world champions again in 2014 has also come true.
- Most astonishing, however, was the prophecy from the 2000 episode, which deals with the presidency of Donald Trump .

Source: Merkur.de

In a 2005 interview (which was only published in 2010), an insider from the City of London reported on the "Anglo-Saxon mission", i.e. a roadmap to world government, which is to be established in the course of staged global crises, but also cataclysms (natural disasters). One of the statements was: "China will 'catch a cold'" (from a biological weapon).

Even the normal winter flu has "very serious" dimensions: every year, five million people worldwide are infected, of which 650,000 die - with or without vaccination. For comparison: Stuttgart has 637,000 inhabitants. A vaccination against this "new (laboratory) variant" has apparently still to be developed, but Bill Gates and his vaccine team are of course well prepared and will soon ask the states to pay! Conventional vaccinations do not protect, or have severe side effects (see Tamiflu ) and in the past (Spanish flu) were often the actual cause of death (see below). Incidentally, the German vaccination requirement scheduled for March coincides surprisingly precisely with the outbreak of the coronavirus in China and its expected spread to all German cities! The global exponential development of the pandemic can even be followed on a (soon probably deep red) world map.

Initial statistics on the global spread of 2019-nCoV \(click to update\)

There is hardly any news coming out of the quarantine cities, so far only a witness report from Chen Qiushi , directly from Wuhan (January 30, 2020), where the situation is very serious. Public transport has been stopped, there are hardly any taxis running. The volunteers are overworked.

Watch Video At: <https://youtu.be/7AI3R41dGnU>

Witness report by Chen Qiushi , directly from Wuhan (30.01.2020) with English subtitles.

Most recently, the mysterious Spanish flu of 1918-1919, which is now barely present in the collective memory , claimed millions of lives worldwide (including Frederik Trump , the grandfather of US President Donald Trump). But millions are also said to have died from the vaccination itself (especially soldiers. See below). One of the few effective weapons against the Spanish flu virus was acetylsalicylic acid (aspirin). The even more effective penicillin was only available from the Second World War onwards

. With today's level of medical knowledge and significantly improved hygiene and nutrition, a repeat of such a catastrophe seems rather unlikely. "Busy vaccine producers" and birth control experts such as the software multi-billionaire Bill Gates even carried out a simulation with an aggressive virus on October 18, 2019, and painted a horror scenario of 65 million deaths worldwide , which was "purely by chance" triggered by a coronavirus that has now just broken out in China and is already spreading globally. 18 years ago there was a "pandemic" with a Corona SARS virus:

The Sars pathogen, which is a coronavirus, infected almost 10,000 people worldwide in 2002 and 2003 and killed about 1,000.
- Süddeutsche Zeitung.

Without cynicism - but 1000 people die every year during the flu season, and compared to the 56,000 sepsis deaths in Germany alone every year (probably over a million worldwide), 1000 deaths would be no reason to panic.

But when there is a lot of money involved, or when money plays no role because it is about global social engineering , about the transformation of society, the fear of a cold virus can be quite deliberate. And there is suspicion that an artificial virus broke out from a Chinese research laboratory in Wuhan. The chronology of the outbreak contains all the occult dates popular in "disaster rituals" : 11, 13, 22, 23, 28 and 31. The 29 (including the day this blog article was written) also plays a role as the eleventh prime number alongside the 11. Just pay attention to that!

Current facts about the corona virus

---

It belongs to the group of influenza A viruses, like the RNA reconstruction of the Spanish flu virus , and it is probably highly aggressive:

In animal experiments, the reconstructed virus proved to be extremely aggressive (as was to be expected given the high death rates of the 1918 epidemic): it killed mice more quickly than any other human influenza virus known to date and, unlike most human influenza viruses, was also fatal to chicken embryos. Unlike other experiments with mice, the reconstructed virus did not have to be adapted to mice. This shows that the hemagglutinin proteins and possibly the neuraminidase of the virus contain virulence factors for mice. Its polymerase genes were similar to those of A/H5N1 and other avian influenza viruses. It also proved to be extremely prolific in epithelial cells from human bronchi, which would lead to pneumonia in the functioning organ. In addition, unlike influenza viruses circulating today, it is able to reproduce without trypsin , which requires a previously unknown mechanism of neuraminidase that facilitates the cleavage of the hemagglutinin .

- Wikipedia

Was the current coronavirus and vaccine created using reconstructed RNA from the Spanish flu virus? Viruses are too small to be constructed. Dr. Lanka has not yet been able to prove the existence of a "measles virus" with a reward of €100,000. Dr. Lanka recently won his case before the European Court of Justice. According to Prof. Dr. Enderlein, a contemporary of Louis Pasteur and Robert Koch, viruses, bacteria and fungi are one and the same life form that changes into different states of aggregation depending on the environment. His pleomorphism hypothesis. So, in theory, you could add RNA to a bacterium and make the environment acidic, which would form the compact protective form (the "virus"). Or you could simply envelop an RNA and the "virus" is ready.

Do drugs for pneumonia also work against the coronavirus? It depends on the aggressiveness of the sub-type, which in turn depends on the hemagglutinin production of the host cell and thus the production of new viruses. The more tissue types can produce new viruses, the faster it spreads, not only in the lungs, but also in all other organs at the same time:

On the replication and pathogenicity of influenza A viruses

---

Although the influenza A virus particle can infect many cell types because of the HA, not all cell types can produce infectious virus particles . In order to produce an infectious virus particle, the HA0 must be converted into the active HA by an extracellular protease of the host cell. Without this activation, the virus envelope cannot fuse with the membrane of the host's lysosome: the particle is not infectious and is degraded in the lysosome. This mechanism determines which cell types (and thus which tissues) are suitable for the proliferation of infectious viruses.

The activation of HA0 by the extracellular protease determines in which tissue of the host's body active virus particles can be produced and in which not. In this way, influenza infection in humans is normally limited to the upper respiratory tract.

Aggressive strains can be activated by various proteases . They have two cleavage sites instead of one and can thus produce active virus particles in other tissues and damage them through infection. Highly aggressive strains (e.g. HPAI) even have three cleavage sites and are thus activated by some cellular serine proteases, e.g. in a multi-basic cleavage site (MBCS). This means that they can multiply throughout the body. A co-infection with bacteria in the lung area can provide these proteases.*

- Wikipedia

A corona virus can attack the respiratory tract and even cause pneumonia (bronchitis), but is less resistant to oxidation than an E. coli bacterium. An in vitro study (Wang XW et al., 2005) showed, for example, that a chlorine dioxide ( $ClO_2$ ) concentration of just 2.19 mg/L = 2.19 ppm in wastewater kills the SARS/corona virus, but not completely the more resistant E. coli pathogen:

In this study, the persistence of severe acute respiratory syndrome-associated coronavirus (SARS-CoV) was observed in feces, urine and water. In addition, the inactivation of SARS-CoV in wastewater with sodium hypochlorite and chlorine dioxide was also studied. In vitro experiments demonstrated that the virus could only persist for 2 days in hospital wastewater, domestic sewage and dechlorinated tap water, while 3 days in feces, 14 days in PBS and 17 days in urine at 20 degrees C. However, at 4 degrees C, the SARS-CoV could persist for 14 days in wastewater and at least 17 days in feces or urine. SARS-CoV is more susceptible to disinfectants than Escherichia coli and f2 phage. Free chlorine was found to inactivate SARS-CoV better than chlorine dioxide. Free residue chlorine over 0.5 mg/L for chlorine or 2.19 mg/L for chlorine dioxide in wastewater ensures complete inactivation of SARS-CoV while it does not completely inactivate E. coli and f2 phage.

-Wang XW et. al, 2005

"In vitro" means "in a (test) tube", while "in vivo" refers to a study on a living object (human). Chlorine dioxide ( $\text{ClO}_2$ ) is - along with ozone ( $\text{O}_3$ ), hydrogen peroxide ( $\text{H}_2\text{O}_2$ ) and calcium or sodium hypochlorite ( $\text{Ca}(\text{ClO})_2$ ) - one of the five oxidants that react without leaving residues and do not chlorinate, but only oxidize like normal oxygen, albeit much more strongly. The oxidation potential of ozone is +1000 mV, that of  $\text{ClO}_2$  is around +800 mV. Chlorine dioxide is therefore somewhat weaker, but more durable and can therefore even penetrate biofilms, which is often crucial. In clean water, the usual 0.2 mg/l of chlorine dioxide is sufficient (made from 6 drops of 25% sodium chlorite solution, activated with 3-6 drops of hydrochloric acid per liter of drinking water). Chlorine dioxide is available in standard household packages, e.g. as Aquapur drinking water disinfectant, from pharmacies or online shops and can also be sprayed to disinfect hands and surfaces (6 drops are diluted to 75 ml, which is enough for 25 L of disinfectant spray in a pack of 100 ml). There are also commercially available disinfectants such as "Clorox" wipes, on which the "Human corona virus" is listed as an "old acquaintance" and which is based on the biocide benzalkonium chloride (0.4%). Ozone generators can be used to disinfect the air in a room. Ozone destroys all organic compounds and thus viruses, bacteria and other organic toxins through oxidation. There are even ozonators with a timer function that switch on every few hours for e.g. five minutes to periodically keep the air in the room clean.

Clorox kills "Human corona virus"

Oxidation (using the body's own peroxides ) is the human body's most effective weapon against toxins and pathogens of all kinds. The best antidote to the corona virus is also to strengthen the body's own defenses. Remember: the higher the oxidation potential of the cell, the healthier the person is! A cell can cope with almost all stresses if it gets enough oxygen and if its metabolic toxins are neutralized by oxidation, which allows the cell to produce energy again.

In Ayurveda, the measure of health is the digestive fire . It is ignited particularly well by deep abdominal breathing (because this increases the level of vital carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>), which is converted into carbonic acid by the miracle enzyme carbonic anhydrase and this is then converted into hydrochloric acid (HCl)), by zinc supplementation (zinc is, among other things, the metal core of carbonic anhydrase ) and sufficient salt intake ( salt is the natural source of chlorine, stomach acid is HCl, proteins are digested with chlorine). Sufficient salt is also necessary for optimal hydration and blood circulation/oxygen supply (see The "Salt Lie"). According to F. Batmanghelidj_ ( "Water, the healthy solution" ) , the four most important chemicals in life are oxygen, water, table salt and potassium (after that there is nothing else for a long time).

In addition to oxidation, there are two other antibacterial and antiviral agents: colloidal silver (effective against 600 types of bacteria) and monolaurin (the esterified form of lauric acid. It is present in human breast milk and is said to provide "nest protection").

Infection hypothesis put to the test

Viewing viruses, fungi and bacteria as dangerous pathogens that need to be selectively combated is certainly often useful, but does not do justice to their basic function:

The monomorphism concept is not conclusive from the previous explanations. If germs originate from the host, it makes sense that they appear in a special form depending on their content, which takes their task into account. Here, too, the analogy helps to understand the content. Viruses are the simplest representatives in terms of structure. They consist of DNA or RNA packed in a shell. If we reduce the chromosomes to their essence, we find a program at the core. Viral processes are therefore about programming the host in a certain way. This can either be a learning program or a manipulation program, depending on who is controlling the virus. The main characteristic of bacteria is communication. Within bacterial communities, exchange between each other is vital. A "bacterial infection" in the infected person indicates that their exchange with their social environment is not intact. In this case, communication takes place internally and is represented by bacteria.

Mycetes, i.e. fungi, always appear where something dies. Since there is no waste in nature, all things are recycled. Decomposition is a process in which biological systems are broken down into their building blocks, which in turn form the basis for something new. In autumn, leaves fall from the trees in the forest and mushrooms sprout from the ground. If you buy wholemeal bread in plastic and forget to buy it, you will find the package weeks later and find that a white lawn of mold has spread throughout the unopened package. The decomposition process is already present in the grain and converts cells into fungi that organize the decomposition.*

Finally, there are the parasites. Where do worms feel at home? In an environment that expresses parasitic characteristics. Either the person affected is exploited or he exploits others. This is where opportunism comes into play.

*The existence of microorganisms in the intestine is undisputed. Humans nominally harbor more bacteria than they have cells. They are our vital "subtenants" who basically keep us alive because they digest our food, produce enzymes, manufacture vitamins and much more. The classification of microorganisms into categories such as important and insignificant, dominant and inferior, harmful and, is not found in nature; it is the result of human thinking . - Carsten Pötter, "Infection hypothesis put to the test"

This is why Pasteur's infection hypothesis is still the subject of sharp criticism today. "In 1993, around a hundred of Pasteur's private diaries surfaced, proving that he had manipulated "the truth" many times. The historian Dr. Gerald L. Geison made these records available to the public." ( Die Unsterblichen.com )

Did vaccinations artificially increase the death rate from the Spanish flu?

The devastating death rate from the Spanish flu of 1918/19 is said to have only come about as a result of mass vaccination (especially of soldiers). This would also explain why the virus mainly killed 20-40 year olds - because that was the age group of soldiers who were vaccinated! It would not be the only time that a medical scandal was covered up and hushed up. And it would also explain why the topic has not yet penetrated public consciousness, even though it is of existential importance for human civilization! It must have been clear to every logically thinking doctor that a future repeat of the Spanish flu in a rapidly growing and increasingly densely populated and mobile world population would have to claim many more than "just" 20-70 million deaths.

The Facts about 5G Technology

---

The Chinese city of Wuhan is, on the one hand, the epicenter of the spread of the corona virus, and on the other hand, the new 5G mobile network has already been fully developed in this hype-modern metropolis of millions . Therefore, "wild speculation" is already circulating as to whether the cause of the 80 deaths from the corona virus in the city so far could actually be radiation from the 5G frequencies? That seems very unlikely and makes no sense in view of the fact that victims will soon be distributed globally! But this opportunity should nevertheless be used to clear up exaggerated fears due to technical ignorance:

5G is primarily about increasing data throughput 10 to 100 times, which is supposedly important for automation or robotization. Autonomous driving requires very low latency and high data throughput. This requires millimeter waves (at 30-300 GHz, i.e. one to two orders of magnitude higher frequency than 4G at 3 GHz). This is also notionizing radiation (which can also be measured via water veins using film blackening). The antennas for 5G are much smaller and can be set up much more closely. Many more antennas can also be packed together, which allows communication with a huge number of end devices. 5G therefore also requires significantly less power, but can no longer penetrate obstacles (house walls) as easily. "Weaponizable" would be microwave radiation with a frequency of 2.45 GHz (i.e. the previous 3G/4G frequency), which can penetrate tissue, but does not work through resonance with the water molecule (22 GHz), but through dielectric heat loss:

The heating of water is not based on absorption at a certain resonance frequency, but rather the water molecules constantly align themselves as dipoles according to the alternating electromagnetic field, whereby heat is generated as a dielectric loss. The frequency used in microwave ovens is 2.45 GHz. This achieves a good compromise between absorption and depth of penetration into the food being cooked. For comparison: the lowest resonance frequency of the free water molecule is 22.2 GHz.
- Microwaves | Wikipedia

Source: 5G Network: How It Works, and Is It Dangerous?

Corona pandemic and the NWO

---

It looks like China - the world's production bank - is currently being shut down. With unforeseeable consequences for the rest of the world. Can a virus cause the global economy to collapse? Toyota has already stopped its car production in China. The origins of the virus will be speculated about for as long as the actual events of 9/11. The wave that is currently rolling in like a tsunami is a "perfect alibi" for the geostrategists and social engineers!

"I am completely relaxed about the crisis. Because as the crisis gets bigger, the ability to implement change gets bigger!"

- Wolfgang Schäuble, 2011

"All we need is the right significant crisis and the nations will accept the New World Order (NWO)."

- David Rockefeller, Bilderberg Conference in Baden-Baden 1991

"Ordo ab chao" (Order from Chaos)

- One of the oldest Masonic mottos

"In politics nothing happens by chance. If something happens, you can be sure that it was planned that way. "

- FD Roosevelt

A pandemic that has been warned about for years is not only of health importance, but above all of political importance on the way to world government. The fact that this will generate hundreds of billions in profit for vaccine manufacturers - as was the case with the controversial Tamiflu in 2002

- is just a side effect. The right to physical integrity is the yardstick for sovereignty . Compulsory vaccination for everyone is tantamount to forced tattooing, as is now mandatory for farm animals and pets and was common in slavery. The "Association of Doctors for Individual Vaccination Decisions" wants to file a constitutional complaint against compulsory vaccination.

Once the pill (or injection) has been swallowed with grumbling, public pressure has triumphed over personal freedom of choice. Then we would have come a big step closer to the actual goal of widespread microchipping . Vaccinations have never provided protection against the virus - every year, the flu affects vaccinated people as well as unvaccinated people.

In view of the pandemic, those who refuse to get vaccinated could quickly be branded as dangerous. The hunt for vaccination critics is taking on increasingly grotesque forms: Professor Chris Exley , a British toxicologist who researches the safety of vaccines, has had his research funding withdrawn . On June 25, 2019, Dr. Dena Churchill was fined an incredible $100,000 for sharing information critical of vaccinations on social media . She could have avoided the fine if she had given in and taken back the information on Facebook.

The number of independent thinkers, critics and dissidents is constantly growing. One indicator of this will be the planned major demonstration for free vaccination decisions in Munich on March 21, 2020 , for which Robert F. Kennedy Jr. has been secured as the keynote speaker. As an environmentalist and anti-vaccination activist, he was invited by the Trump administration in 2017 to head a Vaccine Safety Commission that was to be established . Dr. Soumya Swaminathan , the World Health Organization's Deputy Director General for Programs, admitted during the WHO's global safety summit that some vaccines kill people and that causes of death are covered up. At the end of 2018, Italian Interior Minister Matteo Salvini abolished the compulsory vaccination that had been introduced by the previous Italian government. Salvini ordered that all children should be allowed to go to school from now on, regardless of whether they were vaccinated or not. Until now, children were expelled from school if they were unvaccinated. Salvini said he thought the ten mandatory vaccinations were pointless, and in many cases even dangerous and harmful.

US President Donald Trump plays an ambivalent role: on the one hand, he is in favor of vaccine control, but on the other hand, he is not against vaccinations. His US government even lost a landmark legal battle over compulsory vaccinations ! In the midst of the rapid developments in China, Trump gave a speech on January 21, 2020, to the World Economic Forum , where all of his opponents had also gathered, and he hurled clear words at them, as if he knew exactly what was going on:

"Now is not the time for pessimism - it is the time to be optimistic. Fear and doubt are not good thoughts, for now is the time for tremendous hope, joy, optimism and action.

*But to seize the possibilities of tomorrow, we must reject the persistent prophets of doom and gloom and their predictions of the end of the world. They are the heirs of yesterday's foolish soothsayers - they are here, here, here, all of us, and they want us to fail, but we will not let them. In the 1960s they predicted an overpopulation crisis, in the 1970s a great famine, and in the 1990s the end of oil supplies. These doomsayers always demand the same thing: absolute power to dominate, transform and control every aspect of our lives.

The great scientific breakthroughs of the 20th century - from penicillin to high-yield wheat varieties and modern transportation to groundbreaking vaccines - have raised living standards and saved billions of lives around the world . And we continue to work on things that you will hear about in the near future, that you would not believe, sitting here today, are possible, that we have found the answers to. You will hear about them. But we have found answers to things that people did not think were possible - at least not in the near future."

Has the USA prepared a response to Corona - are Trump and Gates cooperating?

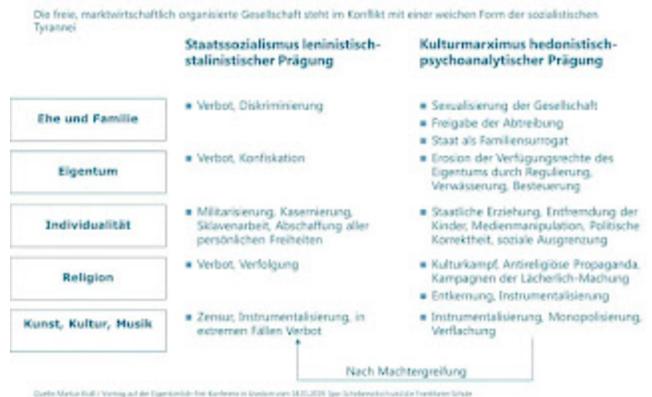

In any case, the security harassment that 9/11 brought about for global air traffic must have been a child's birthday party compared to what would be necessary in the event of an induced pandemic, namely the collection of intimate health parameters to categorize people as infected/not infected, or sick/healthy. Anyone who wants to fly from A to B may need a vaccination certificate in the future, whether old or young. And it goes without saying that the personal data of all "potential transmitters" will be brought together in a new global pandemic security system. Then "Old Bill's" strange dual role as global IT and vaccine strategist suddenly makes sense.

End of an era : banking system at stress-to-break point in 2020

Dr. Markus Krall (German economist, risk manager (80% of all lending algorithms of German banks are his work), management consultant, author and speaker) explains in his 2019 lecture why the banks are in a death spiral and the system is in free fall, driven in part by the negative interest rate policy, and why 2020 is the end of the line and when the biggest bubble of all time bursts (€50 trillion), only gold will be a relatively safe investment. But it will not be an economic crisis, but a constitutional and social crisis! And society will then have to ask itself the same fundamental question that already polarized Friedrich Schiller about Immanuel Kant : freedom or socialism?

And to make the choice really easy, it just needs to be overshadowed by a precisely timed major event like a virus pandemic. Welcome to the GDR 2.0!

Freiheit oder Sozialismus: Was wollen wir wählen?

In his book "Is the West Failing: Germany and the New World Order" in 2003, Wolfgang Schäuble made it very clear where things are headed. The book is now only available second-hand. In this book, even before the global financial crisis of 2008, you can find all the anti-freedom and anti-democratic New World Order thought structures that have become increasingly clear since then. And even then, the brutality is not really obvious, but disguised with euphemisms. For those who read it carefully and are aware of what it means, it is still deeply frightening. Even then, he called for the EU power bloc to be a superstate and a harsh dictatorship under the guise of democratic pseudo-institutions. Of course, there should be parliaments in which the people elected by the people have a playground to discuss things.

- Grüselhorn, "W. Schäuble admits NWO plans"

Dr. Markus Krall - how the economy will hit the wall in 2020.

The Faustian, autocratic elite is also just a tolerated tool in the "big plan". Therefore, they are not solely to blame for the development or the deliberate release of a virus, but the external events always correspond with the life plan (horoscope) that was already determined before birth, both of the individual and of the human collective. The worldwide conspiracy - is ultimately a conspiracy for spiritual awakening! The outbreak of Corona coincides with the change of Saturn into the imperious, disciplining, limiting, authoritarian Capricorn (according to Vedic-sidereal astrology on January 24, 2020 after two and a half years in Sagittarius ), where Saturn is in its own house and is collectively pressing on humanity. An era is coming to an end. In this stressful time, one should not think of big leaps, but prepare oneself for a multi-year phase of perseverance, maturation, testing and transformation.

"We must realise who we really are. It is about overcoming fear. We do not have to become religious leaders. We must make friends with who we are. No one can resist the real self. We will leave this lesson behind us, like a bad dream.

- City of London Insider ( Anglo-Saxon Mission - "China will catch a cold" )